The diagram illustrates a sequence of events and states over time. It consists of multiple horizontal timelines:

- Top Timeline: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [1]'.
- Middle Timeline: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [2]'.
- Second Middle Timeline: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [4]'.
- Bottom Timeline: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [6]'.
- Timeline 1959: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [3]'. It has an arrow pointing to the '1959 2' timeline.
- Timeline 1956: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [5]'. It has an arrow pointing to the '1959 2' timeline.
- Timeline 1959 2: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [2]'. It receives arrows from both the '1959' and '1956' timelines.
- Timeline [1]: Labeled with 'n' and 'n [1]'. It receives an arrow from the '1959 2' timeline.

Arrows indicate the flow of information or state transitions between these timelines.

The Crisis of Agricultural Cooperatives and the Responses in the Mid-1950s — Based on the Investigation of the Northwestern Area of Anhui Province

Man Yong

Abstract: The establishment of agricultural cooperatives in the 1950s took two turns. The first one is “the riot of productivity” in spring 1955; the second is a storm of withdrawals from cooperatives around 1957, which caused attacks on active criminals and socialist education. The present paper, based on the data of the northwestern part of Anhui, centers on attacks on active criminals, figures out the whole context of this socialist defense of the rural areas, and discusses the influence of socialist validity on the rural society. The author argues that by means of the socialist defense, when it gained the comprehensive control of the rural society, the government, on the other hand, muzzled different opinions, losing the chances of reflecting on government policies in practice.

Keywords: establishment of agricultural cooperatives; withdrawal from cooperatives; active criminal; socialist education
